ANNOUNCING An Innovative Partnership

#VISIBLE WOMEN

& f(r)iction

A LITERARY ANTHOLOGY

The teams behind the #VisibleWomen hashtag and Brink's critically-acclaimed anthology, F(r)iction, are joining forces to do more than just bring visibility to women and non-cis-men* working in comics. . . They're creating a themed issue with an all-star team, specifically curated to spotlight #VisibleWomen doing what they do best: bring incredible stories to life.

"We're grateful to the team at Brink Literacy Project for this opportunity to deliver on the promise of #VisibleWomen with concrete job opportunities. Here's hoping that by setting this example, the F(r)iction partnership is the first of many..."

—Kelly Sue DeConnick, Founder of #VisibleWomen

We are not just a visibility campaign.

ALL SELECTED ARTISTS WILL BE MENTORED, PUBLISHED, AND PAID, creating direct hiring opportunities.

"Because of the trailblazing work of #VisibleWomen, I've never struggled to find incredible creators to illustrate our pages. It's an honor to take this mission a step further, partnering on a project that rips the industry curtains back and showcases the stellar talent working on the fringes."

—Dani Hedlund, Founder of Brink Literacy Project

About the Unseen Issue:

In this special issue of F(r)iction, you'll find an explosion of stories and art, shining a light on the unseen forces that control our world, including...

- Over 20 original works, including comics, short stories, creative nonfiction, and poems exploring what it means to be invisible
- Short comics pairing all-star comic writers with emerging #VisibleWomen artists to showcase their stellar talent
- Full color, custom illustrations pulled from a team of solely #VisibleWomen creators

All proceeds support our nonprofit mission to change lives through the power of storytelling!

Join the Creative Team!

*Any creative from a marginalized gender comfortable working under the banner of #VisibleWomen is welcome. All you need to do to be considered for the project is add #Unseen into your #VisibleWomen post on March 29, 2021.
